Office of the Chief

The support and maintenance of the Supply Manual is important to both this Office and the Agency, as it sets the policy pattern and procedure of the complete operations. It is both a guide and instructions to Agency personnel, irrespective of assignment or location. A well-qualified individual is required immediately, full time, to insure that the Manual is kept current and accurate so far as instruction and definition are concerned and a uniform and working system is thus maintained. Therefore a position of Supply Officer is requested to fill the need.

The Inspection and Security Office has advised this Office of the immediate necessity of the assignment of a Security Officer

Increased and complex requirements of various operations are reflected in numerous specialized contracts calling for manufacture according to specifications set up by particular offices of this Agency and also for special lines of research. The manufacture must be of an exacting nature, consequently requiring constant check and supervision as to specifications, material, and security conformance. Two Contract Inspector positions should be added to the T/O to perform such check and supervision. The geographical separation of the contractors' plants emphasizes the need for this addition. The need is immediate, and absence of inspection service can possibly result in loss of time, in non-compliance or partial compliance with contracts, and in destruction of security.

An additional Clerk-Typist is required. There is at present inadequate typing and stenographic support for the higher graded on-duty personnel assigned to this Office, such as the Security Officer and the Contract Inspectors. Additional functions assigned to the Office have also considerably increased the volume of assigned work over and above the previous normal requirements.

Planning Staff

It is the requirement of this office to assist the operating offices with the experience and technical know-how of its assignment by providing the logistical planning aspects of their various projects. A staff of qualified experts must be available at the moment of need as an operational project requires immediate action. The present staff is inadequate to meet this requirement; consequently, a request is made for the addition of a position for a Commodity Ind. Analyst.

A shortage of typists has been long existent. The reorganization of this office failed to provide for adequate stenographer and typist support. The need is becoming more and more critical as work increases. Therefore, the request for the addition of a clerk-typist position is submitted.

Supply Division

25X1 A minimum of Clerks-Typists is required to support the immediate needs of the Stock Control function of the Supply Division. The recent assignment of complete stock control for CIA, regardless of geographical location, has exceeded the present personnel limitations of the office. The Supply Division, as well as all other divisions of this Office, has been understaffed in regard to clerical personnel.
